

Mayor's Youth Leadership Institute

The Mayor's Youth Leadership Institute (MYLI) is a four level year round leadership training and development program for young people in the District of Columbia, ages 14-19. The MYLI training model emphasizes practical hands-on experience and a holistic approach to developing leaders of the 21st century. Each of the four levels of the MYLI training model, Alpha, Beta, Delta and Omega, has a different focus area:

- The Alpha level focuses on personal growth and development skills.
- The Beta level focuses on community development.
- The Delta level focuses on work readiness skills, life skills and career exploration.
- The Omega level places Youth Leaders in internships.

Common training themes throughout the program include:

- Team Building Skills
- Communication Skills
- Public Speaking
- Community Service
- Personal Development
- Employability Skills
- City Government Structure
- College/Career Preparation

New participants are recruited in the spring for the MYLI's Summer Intensive Training component. Youth leaders are selected through a rigorous screening process. The summer portion of our training is conducted for six weeks on a local college campus. It includes training seminars, community labs, youth government elections, cultural events, guest speakers and open discussion forums.

The School Year component of MYLI focuses on applying those skills learned during the summer. Activities include community service projects, general body meetings, youth related forums, and additional leadership development training. The MYLI youth are also called upon to represent the youth of the District of Columbia at events throughout the city, the country, and the world.

The Department of Employment Services is an Equal Opportunity Employer/Provider. Auxiliary aids and services are available upon request to persons with disabilities.
